

St. Peter's Associate Priest, The Rev. David Wantland is originally from Dallas, Texas. David headed east to study at Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina, where he received a B.A. in French Literature. Those studies took him to some unlikely places, from working in the European Parliament in Brussels to interning at an eco-village microfinance fund in Dakar, Senegal. Along the way, David became an Episcopalian and received a call to ministry (on a rooftop in the middle of Dakar. Go figure). David received his Master of Divinity from Duke University Divinity School and completed a Diploma in Anglican Studies at The Episcopal Seminary of the Southwest in Austin, Texas. Prior to joining St. Peter's, David served as Associate Rector at Palmer Memorial Episcopal Church in Houston, Texas. When not at church, David can be found getting lost on a run, convincing someone to let him garden with them, hosting a dinner with his husband, Colby, or finding a climbing wall to fall off. And he's always looking for an excuse to speak French!
