

Dan Malachuk and his wife Ginger moved to Savannah from New Canaan, Connecticut in the summer of 2012. In New Canaan, Dan was an active lay participant in the Congregational church, serving several three-year tours: as a Deacon (similar to the Episcopal vestry) and on the Nominating, Adult Education and Missions & Social Action committees. Dan also served as a Stephen Minister. In Savannah, Dan has been serving as a L.O.V.E. mentor and a member of the LOVE Board. He served a term on the St. Peter's vestry during the period of transition from Father Sam to Father Hunt. The Malachuks have three adult children and one grandson. Dan is a retired Arthur Andersen consulting partner, initially joining the firm upon completion of a four-year tour as a Naval officer. Dan interrupted his consulting career to serve as Director of White House Operations during the Carter administration. Dan and Ginger grew up in Watchung, New Jersey, but lived for some 25 years in Bethesda, MD and almost 20 years in New Canaan. Dan has a Bachelors degree in English Literature from Hamilton College and a Masters degree in Finance from George Washington University.
