

Elizabeth (Beth) McDonald Bio

Beth and her husband moved to Savannah from the Northeast 10 years. A Bostonian by birth but a Jersey girl at heart, southern living took some getting used to. Inspired by the parallels between Boston and Savannah like classic architecture, coastal living and large gatherings of family and friends, she is now comfortable calling Savannah home.

For the last 35 years, Beth has combined a degree in psychology with an inherent interest and talent for design and décor and has built a successful interior design practice. When settling in Savannah, she joined Design House Interiors Group and hit the ground running.

A practicing Catholic until 2019, Beth made a life-changing decision to join the Episcopal Church and quickly realized finding a church family and home was missing from her life.

Beth and John have two sons living in Manhattan who frequently visit. Going back and forth from New York City is a favorite trip.

To relax, Beth enjoys golfing, baking, pilates and good dinners with friends.
